

Our Cookie Statement

What is a cookie?

Cookies are small text files that are stored by the web browser on your computer or mobile phone. Websites use these files to store information such as personalisation details or the contents of a shopping basket. You can learn more about cookies at: www.allaboutcookies.org.uk

What cookies do we use on this website?

We use cookies for statistical purposes only to track how many unique users we have and how often they visit our website (see 'Google Analytics' below). Data we collect includes which of our pages are most frequently visited, and we use this information to continually improve our website. The data collected and stored is anonymous and does not contain any personal data or identify you.

Google Analytics Cookies

Google Analytics, a web analytics service provided by Google, Inc. Google Analytics sets third party cookies throughout this website in order to evaluate your use of the site and compile reports for us on activity.

Google stores the information on servers in the USA. Google may transfer this information to third parties where required to do so by law, or where such third parties process the information on Google's behalf. Google will not associate your IP address with any other data held by Google.

By using our website, you consent to the processing of data about you by Google in the manner and for the purposes set out above.

Information on how to reject or delete the Google Analytics cookie can be found at:
